

This is my representation of purgatory from a psychological perspective (although it may not look like it). I have used a lettuce plant that I'm growing to depict the upwards growth of a person and their purgatory (brought on through therapy) as they escape psychological hell, which is represented through the lighting and the tea lights which I had spare. The flowers above represent the peace and serenity of psychological heaven that the person is growing up to through purgatory.